Color Coding Key

The lines under the earnings in the above report are coded to indicate the relative population of each education level as compared to the population of all persons working year-round, full-time. For each line, the percentage of jobs held by persons of the respective education level is computed. This percentage is then compared to the same percentage for the population as a whole (see below). The ratio of the occupation-specific percentage to the population as a whole is computed, and compared to the table below to derive the color coding.

From	Through
0%	33%
34%	67%
68%	149%
150%	199%
200%

Education Distribution

The values below show the percentage distribution of year-round, full-time workers by level of education within each gender. These percentages are used in the color coding computations described above.
